(Is not fun is very sad.....)

A rabbit named Anchovy has given birth to three living bunnies we found a few days after they were birthed and we found 2 dead. We went away for 2 days and one was dead. We took them on our next trip and one was squished. The next one died a few days later probably from a sickness. That last one was already drinking from the water bottle and eating regular food.

The next year in September, 2 more Kits were found, one eaten. We once again went on a trip. As we had gotten back, it was found without one leg. The next day it was eaten. A few days after that, while cleaning the rabbits' room, we found another dead one they had thrown out of the cage with blood on the floor.
